

Interactive Teaching Procedures in the Political Science

The overall goal of the current project is to promote content “uncoverage” and learning by increasing opportunities for retrieval using writing and discussion activities. Some of the writing activities will be treated as pre-flights and allow me to tailor my presentation to cadet needs. More specifically, this study will examine how SharePoint threaded discussions and the “think-pair-square-share” learning procedure can be used to encourage active learning in the classroom by moving cadets past their tendency for rote memorization and toward a deeper understanding of American politics.
