The Leadership Growth Model

Cadets must develop their skills and perspectives as both leaders and followers because they will serve simultaneously in both capacities at USAFA in the same way officers serve as both leaders and followers at every level of the Air Force.

The LGM defines the key relationships among leaders, followers, and the situation in terms of a four-stage, continuous process. The chart at left details the four stages of the LGM: Expectations and Inspiration, Instruction, Feedback, and Reflection.

First, the leader sets expectations with the follower and provides inspiration by developing a shared understanding of purpose. The leader then provides the essential instruction to help the follower meet the leader's, follower's, and organization's expectations and objectives. As the follower works toward these objectives, the leader coaches, mentors and assesses the follower's competency and provides feedback throughout their engagement.

Finally, the reflection stage (where the leader and follower review their expectations, instructions, and feedback) crystallizes any lessons learned and prepares participants to enter the next cycle.

"Tell me and I forget. Teach me and I remember. Involve me and I learn."

- Ben Franklin

The Guiding Principles

Putting PITO and LGM theories into practice requires a cross mission element strategy capitalizing on the talents of staff, faculty and cadets.

The challenge is to ensure all policies, procedures, standards, and expectations reinforce and support leader development within the PITO model.

While the competencies and outcomes represent the goals and experiences of the Officer Development System, the guiding principles represent the rules of engagement.

The principles below guide the implementation of the Officer Development System.

- 1) Align the USAFA experience with accepted USAF practices.
- 2) Emphasize cadet ownership and accountability for their own development.
- 3) Ensure all leaders and followers gain from each developmental experience, including both successes and failures.
- 4) Establish a common core of experiences and multiple paths to similar outcomes.
- 5) Strike an appropriate balance between quality and quantity of development experiences.
- 6) Create depth of expertise sequentially and progressively based on a cadet's developmental level using the PITO model.
- 7) Couple adequate support with every challenge; tailor every challenge with an appreciation that cadets develop differently and will move through the process at different speeds.
- 8) Use goal-oriented and standards-based approaches to build skill-set expertise.
- 9) Assess the effectiveness of education, training and experiential processes.

"I'm firmly convinced that leaders are not born; they're educated, trained and made, as in every other profession. To ensure a strong and ready Air Force, we must always remain dedicated to this process." — General Curtis LeMay, CSAF, 1961-1965

July 2014

USAFA Mission: To educate, train and inspire men and women to become officers of character, motivated to lead in the United States Air Force and in service to our Nation.

Purpose of The Officer Development System (ODS): Provides all members of the Academy a framework and set of strategies to accomplish our mission.

The path from Cadet Appointee to 2nd Lieutenant officer of character is shaped by three main elements:

- The Foundation is why we are educating and training cadets to become officers
- The USAF Institutional Competencies & USAFA Outcomes we expect cadets to develop and exemplify upon graduation and commissioning (refer to AFI 36-2014 and USAFA Strategic Plan)
- The Process is how we develop cadets through USAFA programs, activities and experiences (PITO, LGM and Guiding Principles).

The Constitution establishes that the President shall "Commission all the Officers of the United States" and provides both guidance and authority to the military officer, securing a direct tie between military officership and the American way of life.

The Air Force Officer's Oath of Office

outlines the commitment of officership and formally establishes the moral obligation for officers who act as agents of the Nation to "support and defend the Constitution of the United States."

The Core Values (integrity first, service before self, and excellence in all we do) are at the heart and soul of the military profession, providing a bedrock for our military endeavors and fortified by service to country.

Officership: The embodiment of the attributes and expectations of a military officer as demanded by the office he/she holds. Officership includes but is not limited to the following four overlapping attributes:

The Warrior Spirit is a hardiness of spirit despite physical and mental hardships—moral and physical courage, grounded in the refusal to accept failure.

A Professional Officer embodies a unique competence and experience, with authority delegated by the Nation; maintaining a distinct culture with a recognized code of ethics; publicly accountable for their personal and professional conduct.

A Leader of Character lives honorably by consistently practicing the Air Force Core Values, lifts others to their best possible selves, and elevates performance to a common and noble purpose.

A Servant of the Nation protects our democratic way of life. This requires a moral obligation, sense of duty, and total commitment to further the interests of the Nation, not the individual.

United States Air Force Academy PITO Model

2nd Lieutenant – A leader of character

Officer with Responsibilities, Skills and Knowledge

1° Organizational Leader — Lead the Cadet Wing while Developing, Shaping and Inspiring all cadets.

- 1. Continue to develop and practice Team, Interpersonal and Personal leadership
- 2. Create an environment where all members of the organization can reach their full potential
- 3. Drive organizational norms for high performance and professional standards
- 4. Integrate efforts of small units toward broader objectives
- 5. Influence procedures and policy to improve the Cadet Wing

ORGANIZATIONA

2° Tactical/Team Leader — Lead teams in support of the mission while enhancing subordinate development.

- 1. Continue to develop and practice Interpersonal and Personal leadership
- 2. Build positive group identity for cohesiveness, confidence and cooperation
- 3. Use knowledge and skills to support common squadron, wing and institutional goals
- 4. Applies team dynamics to focus efforts in unit goals
- 5. Employ effective decision making
- 6. Prepare to develop and practice Organizational leadership

TEAN

= Growth

+ Reflection

+ Feedback

+ Instruction

Expectation and Inspiration

3° Wingman — Excel as wingman and coach the 4° in the ways of the loyal follower.

- 1. Continue to develop and practice Personal leadership
- 2. Promote effective communication through attentive listening, articulate speaking and clear writing
- 3. Coach others to develop and achieve their Personal objectives in all aspects of Cadet Life
- 4. Promote mutual respect, fairness and dignity in interactions
- 5. Commit to the well being (health, morale, safety, training) of others
- 6. Prepare to develop and practice Tactical/Team leadership

INTERPERSONAL

4° Follower — Learn and live loyalty to values, mission, chain of command, and Air Force Standards.

- 1. Master primary Responsibilities, Skills and Knowledge
- 2. Build personal awareness of strengths, developmental needs and impact on others
- 3. Operate and comply with the intent of policies and directives
- 4. Hone followership abilities
- 5. Learn about leadership techniques
- 6. Set the example

New Cadet

Citizen

to Airman

Transformation

7. Prepare to develop and practice Wingman leadership

PERSONAL

The PITO Leadership Model

- Cadets must internalize foundational, Personal elements before they can successfully execute Interpersonal leadership skills.
- Subsequent success leading Teams depends on both personal leadership and the ability to lead people.
- Finally, the ability to effectively lead an Organization is vitally dependent upon retaining the lessons learned from all three previous levels.